IIIrd International Ascochyta Workshop – Ascochyta 2012

Ascochyta 2012 was built on the outcomes of the previous two workshops held at Le Tronchet (France, 2006) and Pullman (USA, 2009) that focused on "Identifying priorities for collaborative research" and "Global Research Initiatives", respectively. The third workshop organized in Córdoba, Spain was focused on the development of "Technical platforms for progress in research and extension". The goal of the workshop was to exchange knowledge and information among participants through presentations and discussions, and to promote international collaborative research toward developing control measures, including resistant germplasm against this particularly devastating disease.
