

Appendice bio-bibliografica su autori e autrici

Maria Cristina Antonucci researcher in Social Sciences at CNR since 2010. After obtaining a PhD in Sociology of Culture and Political Processes (pathway: political processes) in the 14th cycle at Sapienza University of Rome, she was a research fellow in Political Science at the Department of Political Science at Sapienza University (2003-2005). She has taught sociological and political science at the following universities: Roma TRE, L'Aquila, Sapienza University of Rome (2004-2019). Her research interests are: lobbying and advocacy, gender issues, political participation and the third sector.

Yoshiyuki Aoki is a part-time lecturer at Dokkyo University. His main research interests are South Korean student movements, state repression, and memories of protest. He served as Graduate Fellow at The Academy of Korean Studies (2013-2014). He published articles titled Shisya no Kioku to Kankoku Minsyukaundou (Memory of Death in South Korean Democratization Movement), in Kankokugaku Hanmadan (An Arena of Korean Studies), edited by Ogata Y. and Furuhashi A., Tokyo: Iwanami Syoten, 2022, pp. 3-19.

Giovanni Barbieri è professore associato di Sociologia dei fenomeni politici presso il Dipartimento di Scienze Politiche dell'Università di Perugia, dove insegna Sociologia dei fenomeni politici e Metodologia della ricerca sociale e politica. I suoi principali interessi di ricerca vertono sul populismo, i partiti politici e la democrazia. Sul Movimento 5 stelle ha pubblicato «Lo Tsunami tour», in Comunicazione Politica, 1, 2014. Fra le sue recenti pubblicazioni si segnala The Fifth Cleavage. Genealogy of the Populist Ideology and Parties, Lanham, Lexington Books, 2021.

Lorenzo Bosi is Associate Professor in Sociology at the Scuola Normale Superiore. He has received his Ph.D. in politics from Queen's University, Belfast, in 2005 and is the past recipient of the ECRC (University of Kent), Jean Monnet and Marie Curie (EUI) post-doctorate fellowships. He is a political sociologist pursuing comparative analysis into the cross-disciplinary fields of social movements and political violence. He has directed and collaborated on a number of national and international research projects on topics relating to social movements, political violence, and political participation.

Enrico Campo è ricercatore in Sociologia presso il Dipartimento di Filosofia "Piero Martinetti", dove insegna Teorie Sociologiche. È autore di La testa altrove. L'attenzione e la sua crisi nella società digitale (Donzelli 2020, Routledge 2022) e ha curato The Politics of Curiosity: Alternatives to the Attention Economy (con Yves Citton, Routledge 2024) e Exploring the Crisis: Theoretical Perspectives and Empirical Investigations (con Andrea Borghini, Pisa University Press, 2015).

Silvia Cervia è Professoressa associata di Sociologia dei processi culturali (SPS08) presso l'Università di Pisa dove insegna Sociologia dell'educazione e Sociologia ed etnografia dei processi culturali e dove coordina il Laboratorio di ricerca Cult-In-Edu (Cultura-Individui-Educazione). I suoi interessi di ricerca vertono principalmente attorno ai processi culturali come processi di significazione, con particolare attenzione alle dinamiche di co-costruzione e co-produzione di significati e pratiche, nonché ai processi di socializzazione e identitari, con particolare riferimento al genere. Su questi temi ha partecipato a progetti di ricerca nazionali e internazionali e ha pubblicato monografie, contributi in volumi collettanei e numerosi articoli su riviste scientifiche nazionali e internazionali.

Stella Christou is a PhD candidate in Political Science and Sociology at the Scuola Normale Superiore and member of the Center of Social Movement Studies (COSMOS). She is currently working on the social and political ramifications of austerity on public health, with a particular emphasis on health care activism in Southern Europe. She attained her BA in Archaeology & Anthropology and her MA in Medical Anthropology from the University College London (UCL). During her undergraduate and postgraduate studies, Stella was involved in coordinating Research Reading Groups on 'Anthropology in times of Crisis' (2013) and 'Existential Anthropology' (2015).

Fabio de Nardis, is Professor of Political Sociology at the University of Salento and Deputy Director of the CCPS (Centre for Conflict and Participation Studies). He has been Research Fellow at the University of California, Los Angeles and Adjunct Professor of Sociology and Political Science in several Universities. He is Editor in Chief of the international journal "Partecipazione e conflitto" (Participation and conflict), published in English on an open access platform. His studies focus on social and political theory from a critical perspective, political participation, democratization, social movements, and populism.

Lia Duran Mogollon is Post-doctoral researcher in the EuroLit Project at the University of Siegen. Research and teaching areas include political sociology, social movements, youth activism, cultural sociology, sociology of translations, sociology of arts and culture.

Sara Fariello è ricercatrice in Sociologia giuridica, della devianza e mutamento sociale presso l'Università della Campania Luigi Vanvitelli. Insegna Sociologia dell'ambiente e del territorio presso il Dipartimento di Ingegneria e Sociologia economica e del lavoro nei corsi di Ostetricia del Primo Policlinico di Napoli. Precedentemente ha insegnato Sociologia del diritto e Globalizzazione socio-economica presso il Dipartimento di Studi Politici "Jean Monnet". È membro del comitato tecnico-scientifico del CIRS (Centro internazionale per la ricerca sociale nella scienza della salute) e del comitato scientifico del Laboratorio di ricerca interdisciplinare su Corpi, Conflitti, Diritti (Università di Palermo). È componente del comitato redazionale della Rivista Italiana di Conflittologia e del comitato scientifico della collana di sociologia della devianza DeViazioni (Meltemi, Milano). Si occupa di questioni di genere, violenza ostetrica e diritti umani. Tra le pubblicazioni più recenti: Mères assassines. Maternité et infanticide dans l'après-patriarcat, Edition Mimésis (2022) e Sociologia della maternità (con Irene Strazzeri), Mimesis (2020).

Angelo Galiano consegue la laurea in Scienze Politiche e delle Relazioni Internazionali all'Università del Salento. Continua gli studi all'Università del Salento e consegue la laurea magistrale in Sociology and Social Research. Attualmente Ph.D student in Human And Social Sciences. Si occupa di movimenti sociali e politica del conflitto.

Yoojin Koo is Assistant Professor at International Christian University of Tokyo. She received her Ph.D. in Liberal Arts from The University of Tokyo. Her research interests cover areas such as Japanese conservative movements, political participation, social movements, civil society, state-society relations. Her published book and articles include Hoshushimin Shakai to Nihon Seiji - Nippon Kaigi no Dōin to Adobokashi: 1990-2012 (Conservative Civil Society and Japanese Politics - Mobilization and Advocacy of the Japan Conference: 1990-2012), Tokyo: Seikyusha, "A Configurative Approach to Conservative Mobilization in Japan: The Effect of Combining Political Opportunities and Threats," in Japanese Political Science Review, Vol. 5, 2020.

Alessandra Lo Piccolo is a Research Fellow in the BIT-ACT research project, University of Bologna, Department of Political and Social Sciences. She attained her Ph.D. at the Scuola Normale Superiore, where she investigated the accountability consequences of grassroots anti-corruption mobilizations in Italy and Spain. Over the years, she has conducted research on the impact of civil society initiatives on governmental transparency, whistleblowers' protection, and political monitoring. Her research interests include political sociology, political corruption, collective action, and relational sociology. She has obtained a Master's in Sociology and Social Research from the University of Trento and Tilburg (double degree) and a BA in Sociology from the University of Bologna. During her Ph.D., she has held visiting positions at the Pompeu Fabra University, the University of Geneva, and the University Jaume I de Castellon.

Måns Lundstedt is a PhD candidate in political science and sociology. His current research studies local processes of collective action in Sweden within the context of the so-called 'refugee crisis' of 2015 and 2016. His research specifically inquires into trajectories of collective action against the accommodation of refugees. He holds a Master's degree in sociology from Lund University. His MA thesis analyzed the history of the local radical left wing activism scene in a town in Northern Sweden. As research assistant and independent researcher, he has also contributed to studies of radical left wing activism in Sweden and the Baltic region, policy entrepreneurs in international organizations, and urban grassroots mobilization in Poland.

Stefan Malthaner is Assistant Professor at the Department of Political Sciences and Government at Aarhus University, Denmark and is investigator in the EU funded research project “PRIME” (Preventing, Interdicting, and Mitigating Lone Actor Extremist Events). Previously, he was Marie Curie Fellow and Max Weber Fellow at the European University Institute (EUI) in Florence, Italy, researcher at the Institute for Interdisciplinary Research on Conflict and Violence (IKG) in Bielefeld, Germany, and a member of the Research Group “Micropolitics of Armed Group” at Humboldt University Berlin. He has done extensive field research on militant movements and armed groups in Egypt, Lebanon, Germany, Great Britain, and Peru, with a particular focus on the relationship between militant movements and their social environment as well as on processes of conflict escalation and transformation.

Carla Mannino is a PhD candidate in Political Science and Sociology at the Scuola Normale Superiore and a member of the Center of Social Movement Studies (COSMOS). Her research interests revolve around contentious politics and its relational dimension. Before coming to SNS, Carla attained her B.A. in Modern Languages and International Studies at Ca’ Foscari University of Venice and her M.A. in Political and Social Sciences at Sciences Po Strasbourg. During her studies in Strasbourg, she specialized in social movement theory and in her Master’s thesis she analyzed intergroup relationships in the No-Muos campaign. Her current research focuses on the interplay between pro-independence parties and movements in the Scottish and Catalan quests for self-determination.

Umberto Melotti ha insegnato sociologia e antropologia culturale all’Accademia di Brera, all’Università di Pavia e, come ordinario, per ventisei anni, alla “Sapienza” di Roma. Ha insegnato anche in Algeria, Tunisia, Argentina, Cuba e Repubblica Dominicana. È stato coordinatore in Italia dell’European Sociobiological Association e ha diretto, per l’Unione Europea, il primo progetto Med Campus sulle migrazioni internazionali. Ha fondato e diretto la rivista Terzo Mondo ed è stato per otto anni nella direzione dell’International Review of Education, pubblicata in tre lingue dall’Unesco. Fra le sue pubblicazioni: Marx e il Terzo Mondo (Il Saggiatore, Milano, 1972), tradotto in inglese, spagnolo e cinese; L’uomo tra natura e storia (Unicopli, Milano, 1979), tradotto in spagnolo; Migrazioni internazionali e culture politiche (Bruno Mondadori, Milano, 2004), parzialmente tradotto in molte lingue; e, con Luigi Solivetti, Perché la sociologia. Incontro con Franco Ferrarotti (Mondadori Università, Milano, 2009). Ha pubblicato articoli su molte riviste, fra cui Critica Sociologica, Current Anthropology, Estudios Migratorios, Human Evolution, International Review of Sociology, Rassegna italiana di Sociologia, Revue Européenne de Sciences Sociales.

Lucia Montesanti è ricercatrice e docente presso il Dipartimento di Giurisprudenza, Economia e Sociologia dell’Università Magna Grecia di Catanzaro. In precedenza ha svolto attività di ricerca e di docenza presso il Dipartimento di Scienze Politiche e Sociali dell’Università della Calabria. Ha pubblicato diversi contributi sui partiti politici, le politiche di sviluppo locale, il ceto politico locale, la biografia politica delle donne, i minori non accompagnati e i tutori volontari. Fra le sue ultime pubblicazioni: Montesanti L., Veltri E. (a cura di) (2021), Donne e politica in Umbria fra Resistenza e ricostruzione, Esi, Napoli; Montesanti L. (a cura di) (2023), Cambiamenti globali e sostenibilità, Esi, Napoli.

Luca Pavani is Ph.D. student in Legality, Political Cultures, and Democracy at the University of Perugia. His research interests focus on sustainability and ecosocial work, participatory processes in social work, and the management of social services. At the University of Turin, he serves as a traineeship tutor for the Master’s degree in Social Policy and Social Work and has been an adjunct professor for the Bachelor’s degree in Social Work.

David H. Slater is professor of cultural anthropology at Sophia University in Tokyo. His publications include Social Class in Contemporary Japan (2009) co-edited with Ishida Hiroshi; 3.11 Politics in Disaster Japan: Fear and Anger, Possibility and Hope (2011) co-edited with Anne Allison; Higashinohon daishinsai no jinrui-gaku-- tsunami, genpatsu jiko to hisai-sha-tachi no 'sonogo' (2013) co-edited with Tom Gill and Brigitte Steger, and in English Japan Copes with Calamity (2015); “Social Media in Disaster Japan” co-authored with Nishimura Keiko and Love Kindstrand; Vulnerable Populations Under COVID-19 in Japan (2021); and “The Whole Block Goes Down: Refugees in Japan’s detention centers during the pandemic” (2021) co-authored with Rosa Barbaran. He is co-editor with Patricia G. Steinhoff of Alternative Politics in Contemporary Japan: New Directions in Social Movements (2024). He is currently researching refugee asylum seekers and migrant populations in Tokyo.

Michele Sorice is full professor of Sociology of Cultural and Communicative Processes at the Department of Communication and Social Research, Sapienza University of Rome. His main research activities are in the field of critical sociology and critical media studies. Main research areas: communication and civic engagement, digital platforms and media, media and democracy, democratic innovation and participatory processes, political communication, neoliberalism and depoliticisation, digital activism and social movements.

Federica Stagni is a research fellow at the Scuola Normale Superiore, where she obtained a Ph.D. at the Faculty of Political Science and Sociology. Her research focuses on anti-demolition and anti-eviction movements in Historic Palestine, where she has spent periods of field research. She has worked as a researcher for ACLED and published in several journals of scientific studies, such as Critical Sociology, PACO, and the International Journal of Qualitative Methods.

Patricia G. Steinhoff is emeritus professor of sociology at the University of Hawai'i. Her books on Japan include Tenkō: Ideology and Societal Integration in Pre-war Japan (1991); Nihon Sekigunha: Sono Shakaigakuteki Monogatari [Japan Red Army Factions: A Sociological Tale] (1991), republished as Shi eno Ideology: Nihon Sekigunha. [Deadly Ideology: the Japanese Red Army Factions] (2003); and Rengō Sekigun to Aum Shinrikyō: Nihon Shakai o Kataru with Itō Yoshinori and Takahashi Megumi [United Red Army and Aum Shinrikyō: Talking About Japanese Society] (1996). She has also edited or co-edited Conflict in Japan with Ellis Krauss and Thomas Rohlen, (1984); Doing Fieldwork in Japan with Theodore Bestor and Vickey Lyon Bestor (2003); Going to Court to Change Japan: Social Movements and the Law (2014); Destiny: The Secret Operations of the Yodogō Exiles, English translation of Takazawa Kōji, Shukumei: Yodogō Bōmeishatachi no Himitsu Kosaku (2017). She is co-editor with David H. Slater of Alternative Politics in Contemporary Japan: New Directions in Social Movements (2024). She is currently completing an updated English version of her 1991 Japanese book on the Japanese Red Army Factions.

Maria Nicola Stragapede is a PhD candidate in Political Science and Sociology at Scuola Normale Superiore, where she works on Tunisian youth activism in post-revolutionary processes, memory studies, and socio-economic inequalities in political mobilisation. She holds a bachelor degree in Sociology from the University of Trento where she collaborated to the ROMACT project on the Romani and Sinti community of Trento. She also holds a MPhil in the Sociology of Media and Culture from the University of Cambridge, funded by an ESRC grant. Maria Nicola has previously lived in Tunisi, where she worked on a local volunteer program in Mellasine and has been an activist with the Peace Corps Operation Dove in the South Hebron Hills, Palestine.

Irene Strazzeri è presidente del cdl in Servizio sociale e professoressa associata in Sociologia generale presso l'Università del Salento, dove insegna Sociologia e ricerca sociale, Metodologia delle scienze sociali, Sociologia della globalizzazione. Precedentemente ha insegnato Sociologia del mutamento e Metodologia delle scienze sociali presso il Dipartimento di Studi Umanistici dell'Università degli Studi di Foggia dove è stata coordinatrice scientifica del Master di II livello Globalizzazione e Diritti umani e del Master di I Livello Sociologia Critica. È membro del comitato scientifico della Rivista di Scienze Sociali e dirige la collana editoriale In LIMINE presso la casa editrice Progedit di Bari. I suoi interessi combinano la Teoria critica contemporanea con gli studi di genere, postcoloniali e femministi. Ha pubblicato: Teoria e prassi di riconoscimento (2005); Riconoscimento e diritti umani. Grammatica del conflitto nel processo di integrazione europea (2007); Dalla redistribuzione al riconoscimento. Declinazioni paradigmatiche della differenza sessuale (2009); Verità e menzogna. Sociologie del Postmoderno (2010); Post-patriarcato. L'agonia di un ordine simbolico (2014), La Resistenza della differenza. Tra liberazione e dominio (2017), Femminismo Liquido. Dalle origini al cyborg (2019).

Francesca Veltri è professoressa associata presso l'Università della Calabria. In precedenza ha svolto attività di ricerca e docenza presso l'Università di Firenze e la Scuola Superiore S. Anna di Pisa. Ha pubblicato diversi articoli e saggi scientifici, tra cui si segnalano: «L'obbedienza è (ancora) una virtù? Vincoli normativi e limiti sistemici dell'obbedienza» in Sociologia e ricerca sociale, 125, 2021, e, con Lucia Montesanti, «Il Movimento 5 Stelle e la personalizzazione alle elezioni regionali: un partito in trasformazione», in Meridiana, 26, 2019. È coautrice con Paolo Ceri della monografia Il Movimento nella rete. Storia e struttura del Movimento 5 Stelle, Rosenberg & Sellier, 2017.

Andrea Volterrani is associate professor of Sociology of Cultural and Communicative Processes at the University of Rome Tor Vergata. He collaborates with organisations and institutions in the third sector for advanced training, consultancy and action-research activities.

Takeshi Wada is Professor of Sociology and Latin American Studies at The University of Tokyo. He received his Ph.D. in sociology from Columbia University and served as a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs, Harvard University (2003-2005) and as a Visiting Scholar at the Jack W. Peltason Center for the Study of Democracy, University of California Irvine (2019). His area of specialization includes contentious politics and development with publications in journals such as Mobilization, Social Problems, and Social Movement Studies. He recently contributed a chapter titled “Repertoires of Contention across Latin America” in The Oxford Handbook of Latin American Social Movements edited by Federico M. Rossi, Oxford University Press, New York, 2023, pp. 660-677.